FCC CHAIRMAN TO DELIVER KEYNOTE AT THE 2017 M-ENABLING SUMMIT

BETHESDA, MD (March 2, 2017) – The organizers of the M-Enabling Summit are pleased to announce that the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) will be returning to present the FCC Chairman's Awards for Advancement in Accessibility (Chairman's AAA) at the M-Enabling Summit on June 13 from 4:45 pm till 5:45 pm.

Ajit Pai, the newly appointed Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, will be delivering a keynote address at the 2017 M-Enabling Summit. Ajit Pai previously served as Commissioner at the FCC, having started in this official position in May 2012.

With the rapid evolution of technology and the implementation of the 21st Century Video and Communications Accessibility Act, the FCC has been playing a leading role in advancing accessibility innovation and competition in the field of information and communications technologies, with the participation of key stakeholders including industry professionals, advocacy organizations and accessibility experts.

The Summit's program will focus on accessibility innovations, with over 150 speakers, private sector leaders, apps developers, policy makers, mobile accessibility experts and disability advocates sharing their knowledge and experience. Confirmed presenters include representatives of leading organizations facilitating the accessible technology market.
